Mr. Geo. W. Ratliff Killed by Moonshiners.

Ratliff was shot, we have learned the following particulars: On Wednesday night, the 28th inst., at 10 o'clock, Mr. Ratliff in Sunday, July 9th, morning and night at company with Mr. Wayne Ferguson, who is a special agent in the revenue service, left Richlands, with the avowed purpose of destroying some illicit stills located on Swords Creek. Ratliff began to adlocated, and, when at a distance of some thirty or fifty yards from Ferguson, was shot by unknown parties from ambush, and was almost instantly killed. There were sent from a double barrel shot gun, loaded with rifle bullets or buckshot. Six Walker. of these bullets struck Mr. Ratliff in the face and six in the breast. The place at which the shooting was done was a wild Brown, of the Cove, were in town yesterone, covered with thick brush. When day en route to the marriage of Miss Neal Ferguson heard the reports of the guns he and Mr. W. J. Crockett. hollowed for Ratliff but got no reply. The assassins, however, yelled back that they had killed Ratliff and would give Ferguson the same kind of a dose if he would advance. Mr. Ferguson was, of course, discreet enough not to go any further, but returned to Swords Creek station, and securing assistance, a posse went to the Thompson Valley, Mr. O. E. GENTLENESS IN WAR.

L Singular Characteristic of the Samoans-An Illustrative Incident. War is savage in its very nature, and one looks for war among savages to be peculiarly barbarous. That such is not always the case among the people of Samoa is attested by a letter sent from Samoa by an American gentleman who recently visited Apia, and who gives a description of Mataafa's army in camp after a battle between the rival claim ants to the throne, says Youth's Com-"We went all about among the huts where the savages were resting after the battle and making preparations for the next fight. It was a very peaceful scene, for their arms were all concealed under the mats where the men sat, and many of the soldiers were accompanied by their wives and children. They were amusing themselves by smoking and beating tom-toms. "The Samoans are a most amiable race of savages, and white people are always perfectly safe among them.

Everywhere we were greeted with smiles and friendly nods and the salutation, 'Talofa,' which means 'Love to you,' from men, women and children. "One instance of their friendly feel-ing occurred during the big battle. A white man, who lived in the street where they were fighting, saw that two of his horses had strayed out between the hostile lines. He did not want to lose them, and he did not want to venture out in the line of fire. So he stuck a white flag out of his window. Upon seeing it, both chiefs ordered their men o stop firing, and hostilities were su pended while the white man went out and drove his horses to a place of shelter. Then the combatants went at it

AFRICAN RIVERS.

Eight Months Out of Twelve They Are Dry and Drifts of Sand Mark Their Course.

It is a distinguishing feature of most African rivers that they contain no water for at least eight months of the year. It is true that water can almost always be found in a river bed by digging for it, but in outward appearances river is usually a broad belt of sand lying between high and precipitous banks. Many and many a coach has been upset in one of these drifts, as they are called. The descent is always steep, frequently so steep that the brakes cannot hold the coach, says Gentleman's Magazine.

They start going down at a crawl, and then the coach gathers way and goes on with a rush, the mules are driven into a heap anyhow, and one wonders that they do not get their legs broken; but they usually land all right, while the coach, practically unmanage-COLLEGE able, goes down like a sort of toboggan, jumping from stone to stone, and swaying like a ship in a sudden squall, and may or may not arrive right side uppermost at the bottom. In fact, the passenger who has gathered his ideas of coaching from a trip to Brighton or a drive to Virginia Water, finds that he has a lot to learn about the subject when he gets to South Africa. Still, on the whole, it was wonderful how few accidents did occur, and if one considers that the coaches ran night and day, and that when there was no moon it would sometimes be too dark to see the mules from off the coach, it reflects great credit on the drivers.

The upper floors were loding-rooms of almost unimaginable dinginess and squalor. Throughout the entire establishment was a series of signal bells, peep holes, falling bars and special locks, and ready exit was given by no less than four specially constructed and supposably secret passages. The rickety old tenement had been made into a veritable labyrinth of pseudomysterious precautions against the police. When the police did come the warning was given by a man stationed in the street for that purpose-called appropriately enough a "lighthouse"—the signal bells clanged, the bars fell, the special locks slid into place, eyes blinked at the peep holes and at the last moment the aroused inmates scurried through the secret passages into the arms of the officers who were waiting for them there. That cafe went out of existence, but others are still doing a cautious business.

A Glance at the Interior of a Notorious One That Was Raided by the Police. Through one of the most infamous of the cafes a Leslie's Weekly writer went recently, just after the police had raided it with axes. The entire ground floor was a drinking hell of tawdry clegance. On the second floor was a gambling room reached by devious passages through heavily barred gates.
